1. Display Advertising

Display advertising is one of the easiest ways to monetize your website traffic. By placing ads strategically throughout your site, you can earn revenue from every visitor, regardless of whether they make a purchase.

Primary Options:

- Google AdSense - The most popular option, easy to set up, works well with affiliate content. Automatic ad optimization based on your content.
- Media.net - Contextual ads specifically designed for finance and investing niches. Often higher CPM rates than AdSense for financial content.
- Ezoic - AI-powered ad optimization that tests different ad placements automatically. Requires 10k+ monthly sessions but can increase revenue by 50-250%.
- Mediavine - Premium ad network requiring 50k+ monthly sessions. Offers excellent revenue rates and user experience.
- AdThrive/Raptive - Top-tier networks for established sites (100k+ monthly sessions). Highest revenue potential with dedicated support.

Additional Advertising Ideas:

- Native advertising - Sponsored content that matches your site's design (Outbrain, Taboola)
- Video ads - Pre-roll, mid-roll, or post-roll video advertisements
- Sticky sidebar ads - Ads that stay visible while users scroll
- In-content ads - Ads placed within blog post content for better engagement
- Push notification ads - Monetize browser push notifications (OneSignal, PushEngage)
- Interstitial ads - Full-screen ads between page transitions (use sparingly)
- Sponsored search results - Allow companies to sponsor search results on your site

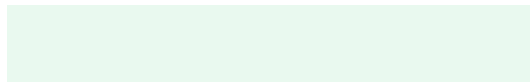

Implementation Tips:

- Start with Google AdSense - It's the easiest entry point
- Place ads above the fold but don't overwhelm users
- Use responsive ad units that work on mobile devices
- Test different ad placements to find what works best
- Balance ad revenue with user experience - too many ads hurt both
- Consider ad density guidelines (Google recommends max 3 ads per page)
- Use heat mapping tools to see where users look most

Revenue Potential:

$1-5 per 1,000 visitors (CPM)

Can reach $10-20 CPM with premium networks
